Title: Ethical Failings of CPSO Policy and the Health Care Consent Act: Case Review

Version: 1 Date: 01 Dec 2018

Reviewer: Robert Swidler

Reviewer’s report:

Well-written and persuasive.

The article is still stronger in its critique of unfettered patient autonomy than it is in its case for physician override. Specifically there is a difference between call for decisions based on "evidence-based medicine" and calling for decisions based on physician discretion, which could vary widely. The authors could clarify which they are calling for - I hope and assume it is the former.
