Title: 'I try not to bother the residents too much' - the use of capillary blood glucose measurements in nursing homes

Version: 2 Date: 21 Dec 2015

Reviewer: Mohamad Al-Tannir

Reviewer's report:

I could see a major improvement from the last version. The language has improved significantly, the rephrasing and rearrangement of words augmented the logic flow of argument which is essential in qualitative research articles. I would recommend elaborating further the residents role and what recommendations are there to empower them in providing yet more effective healthcare service in terms of CBGM. Training on measurement and counselling may aid in strengthening the recommendation section.
