Professional values is an important topic. The English in the manuscript required significant editing, and I am not sure that the edits I provided are adequate. The study was a simple descriptive study in one setting, which limits its generalizability and recommendations that can be made. The emphasis on the role of nurse educators in the development of the values was not supported in this manuscript because the subjects were not asked how they had learned these values. We do not know to what extent students had these values prior to entering nursing education.
