Reviewer’s report

Title: Opportunities and challenges of integrating genetics education about human diversity into public health nurses’ responsibilities in Japan

Version: 0  Date: 15 Apr 2019

Reviewer: Angel Romero-Collado

Reviewer's report:

The manuscript presents a topic of interest. I do have a few comments for the authors to consider:

Keywords: all were MeSH terms except 'Genetic nursing'. You can use only 'Nursing'.

The study design is a phenomenological study.

Participants: The authors can describe a little more the participants in the study, identifying them to each one anonymously (for example with a letter and a number) and then identify the appointment in the results. You can see an example in the Costa P, Garcia AP, Toledo VP. WELCOMING AND NURSING CARE: A PHENOMENOLOGICAL STUDY. Texto contexto - enferm. 2016;25(1): e4550015. Available from: http://www.scielo.br/scielo.php?script=sci_arttext&amp;pid=S0104-07072016000100324&amp;lng=en.

Results: identify each appointment with each participant, so it will be easier to discern the reader the different opinions that the participants have.

Are the methods appropriate and well described?
