The methods are well described, although I am not entirely sure if a mixed method description can be used for this paper. I can see a quantitative survey and a qualitative arm of the study but they are not feeding into each other. The analysis for the qualitative data could have been more in depth and structural (Grounded theory, IPA etc). However the paper provide good insights into barriers into engagement with projects similar to the one described in this study. The authors should rethink the volume of quotes used from patients. Please make sure only quotes that are relevant to a particular point or message to be included.
