Version: 0 Date: 07 Sep 2018

Reviewer: Shijan Acharya

Reviewer's report:

In the given figures, it is illustrated that in South America and Central America, hate crime is increasing, in spite of legal marriage, adoption or let's say with increasing acceptance or anti-discrimination. What can be the reason behind this?

Also Brazil and similar countries having granted many rights for LGBTI group, why are the crimes reported high in these countries? Were they under reported earlier, or is wider acceptance leading to increasing crime? Can you show any underlying factors related to this?
