Title: Omega-3 fatty acids to prevent preterm birth: Australian pregnant women’s preterm birth awareness and intentions to increase omega-3 fatty acid intake

Version: 0 Date: 12 Sep 2019

Reviewer: Kylie Abott

Reviewer's report:

This paper describes a questionnaire assessing knowledge and intentions around pregnant women's knowledge of omega-3 in preventing preterm birth. The paper describes the results of short online questionnaire completed by pregnant or recently birthed women in Australia. The information is timely, given the recently published Cochrane review on the effect of omega-3 PUFAs on pre term birth. The sample size is sufficient. The study is justified, well described by the authors, and provides important information on knowledge of omega-3 polyunsaturated fatty acids from pregnant women in Australia.
