Title: Daily tea drinking is not associated with newly diagnosed non-alcoholic fatty liver disease in Chinese adults: the Tianjin Chronic Low-grade Systemic Inflammation and Health Cohort Study

Version: 0 Date: 15 Oct 2019

Reviewer's report:

The manuscript has interesting results. However, there are few points that need to be addressed before considering this manuscript:

1. It would be more interesting if the dietary consumption data/results are presented as a table or in the supplementary material.

2. What kind of IPAQ had been used in this study? Short or long IPAQ? had it been validated before?

3. Line 225: the justification is not clear enough

Major comments:

1. if NAFLD was diagnosed by abdominal USG and no history of heavy drinking, how the author justify that the participants enrolled in NAFLD positive did not have history of heavy drinking (or how the author justify that NAFLD positive participants are truly NAFLD not ALD?). Meanwhile, in Table 1 there is an information about drinking status and some of the participants were current drinker (even drinking everyday).
