Title: Taking stock of 10 years of published research on the ASHA program: examining India’s national community health worker program from a health systems perspective

Version: 0 Date: 11 Dec 2018

Reviewer: Ritika Tiwari

Reviewer’s report:

1. The authors may quote any similar studies (systematic review) undertaken for CHW programs from other developing or developed countries to add on to the significance of the work undertaken?

2. The authors may use the term NHM instead of NRHM from 'methods' section onwards.

3. Since the manuscript is examining India's CHW program from a health systems perspective - it would be interesting to mention what do the authors conclude about the overall success/ failure of the program?

4. Though the authors have covered it in different places in the manuscript but a separate section suggesting a 'future road map' for addressing the concerns and issues pertaining to the ASHA program to the policy makers (explaining the ideal research design for a state level and a national level study) will be helpful for the readers.
