Reviewer's report:

This is a very important manuscript "Knowledge mobilisation in practice: an evaluation of the Australian Prevention Partnership Centre", which provides important insights into practical approaches (knowledge mobilisation strategies) for partnership developing and moving forward to maximise contributions to policy and society. The methodology (a mixed methods approach) is thoroughly described, fully consistent with the objectives; the findings are important and support conclusions. The manuscript could be used as a road map for building and strengthening partnerships in health and provides a Partnership Centre model for impactful research collaboration between policymakers, practitioners and researchers.
