Title: Medical Abortion in Nepal: A qualitative study on women’s experiences at safe abortion services and pharmacies

Reviewer's report:

It is a well-written and concise manuscript. My only criticism or suggestion is that the comparison groups did not include women who sought services from government or private hospitals, which I imagine might be a significant proportion of the population. Again, an assumption, but it may well be that government services and private hospitals do not have the same level of focus on education provision as an International NGO does. Therefore it is possible that pharmacies might even provide better educational services than a busy government hospital, or at least the disparities among the two groups may not be so great. This is an area for further research. The conclusion regarding improving pharmacy services' post-abortion care is important and makes this article a valuable contribution to learning.
