Title: Household Fuel Use and Adverse Pregnancy Outcomes in a Ghanaian Cohort Study

Version: 0 Date: 14 Oct 2019

Reviewer: karline Wilson-Mitchell

Reviewer's report:

This is a timely and important study that replicates the Asian data in the African context. This study will inform policy, education and funding priorities. Consider discussing methodology some more. Were there any data on any other potentially confounding variables or co-variables, e.g., nutrition, placentation? PTB, preeclampsia have also been tied to abnormal placentation. (Barjaktarovic M, Korevaar TI, Jaddoe VW, de Rijke YB, Peeters RP, Steegers EA. Human chorionic gonadotropin and the risk of pre-eclampsia: a prospective population-based cohort study. Ultrasound in Obstetrics & Gynecology. 2019 Mar 5. Available at https://obgyn.onlinelibrary.wiley.com/doi/full/10.1002/uog.20256).

Style and flow could benefit from some minor help - which shouldn't be too difficult.
