Title: Primary cutaneous apocrine gland carcinoma from areolar tissue in male patient with gynecomastia: a case report.

Version: 1 Date: 8 June 2015

Reviewer: Pierre de Delva

Reviewer’s report:

No major compulsory or minor essential revisions.

Discretionary Revision: I would not use the word "huge" to describe the lesion in the first paragraph of the case presentation. Huge seems dramatic and sensational. I think using a word such a large and providing the size of the mass will be a little more professional.

Level of interest: An article of importance in its field

Quality of written English: Acceptable
