Reviewer's report:

First congratulation to you about your nice case. The patient of intravenous leiomyomatosis had been well treated and the prognosis is good till now. The author had reported radical surgical resection by the help of CPB with the heart beating, the establishment of CPB should further discussed for the the tumor had extended to the right atrium, the cannulation shall of great caution. The sequential treatment of whether the patient had anticoagulation or anti-platelet treatment should discussed. Further polishing of language should be necessary.
