Title: Thrombus aspiration catheter improve the myocardial reperfusion of STEMI patients with high thrombus load during the emergency PCI operation

Reviewer’s report:

This is an interesting study performed by Ping Li and colleagues. Nevertheless I believe that the focus of this manuscript better goes with a journal in the field of cardiology and not cardio-thoracic surgery. Therefore I would suggest to redirect the paper to another journal.

In my opinion the study and especially the value can be significantly improved by increasing the number of patients. Due to the "small" number the results are flaw and a meaningful conclusion cannot be drawn, although the topic is of great importance.
