Title: Gingival metastasis of a mediastinal pulmonary sarcomatoid carcinoma: A case report

Version: 0 Date: 28 Jul 2019

Reviewer's report:

This is an interesting case report and would be a valuable addition the current literature available on Pulmonary Sarcomatoid Carcinomas (PSC). Looking at previous reports, not only that these are rare and aggressive, it is safe to say that they can metastasize anywhere in the body. This case therefore, comes with no surprises. It highlights that clinicians should have a high index of suspicion in the diagnosis and management of PSC, both of which are controversial partly due to the complexity of the clinical presentation.

I thank the authors for their efforts it writing up this clinical case report. I, however, would suggest a language correction by a specialist prior publication.

For example, these sentences need to be corrected:

1. "We describe a patient who found a tumor located in the right upper lobe---"
   I would say: A patient who was found to have a tumour in the right upper lobe of the lung

2. "Received surgery treatment"------- Surgical treatment or simply: underwent a right upper lobectomy.

3. "Total body CT"--------Full body CT

5. "Rapid pathological diagnosis"-----also known as Frozen section biopsy.

6. The last sentence in the conclusion needs to be rephrased entirely.
