Title: Very Late Unusual Thrombosis of the Remnant Pulmonary Vasculatures after Lung Resection Complicated by Embolic Events

Version: 0 Date: 31 Aug 2019

Reviewer: Masahiro Kitada

Reviewer's report:

I have a question about the discussion.

If the stump length is confirmed by contrast-enhanced CT after surgery, is it necessary to introduce anticoagulant therapy?

I think that it is better to put into consideration the continuous intravenous injection of unfractionated heparin and intermittent pneumatic compression to prevent the development of thrombus in the pulmonary vein stump after surgery.
