Reviewer’s report:

Thank you for allowing me to participate to this reviewing. This is interesting and important population study. Considering the Colombian population is not heterogeneous and the spectrum of mutations differs completely from one region to another, therefore the results this study are very important, because the authors reported new, probably pathogenic alterations in the BRCA1 and BRCA2 genes in geographic regions. Establishment of a panel of Colombian mutations for the whole country is extremely important, because it would then be possible to identify asymptomatic carriers and propose appropriate preventive options for them.
