Version: 2 Date: 16 Jul 2019

Reviewer's report:

In the current manuscript, the authors have provided a protocol for a RCT to evaluate effect of a Chinese herbal medicine on patients with CAD. The manuscript is well-written but followings should be addressed. 1- The authors should gather and provide other important baseline data such as EF which may affect the treatment protocols significantly. 2- Patients who have survival gains from revascularization should be excluded from the study including those with 2 or 3- vessel dx involving proximal LAD with either DM or low EF. 3- Patients whose symptom especially chest pain is not relived during the study should exit and undergo revascularization. 4- The authors should provide a description for any abbreviation used for the first time in the manuscript (for example SGR in the abstract).
