This article describes about successful case of laparoscopic repair for the vesico-vaginal fistula after hysterectomy case. This article is well-organized on the whole, however, further deep speculation or device, or novelty is needed, so reached only the half-way point.

Minor point
In Figure 3, the surgical instrument for suturing was given the appearance of Robotic surgery. However, in this article, there is no description about Robot-assisted laparoscopic surgery. The author should describe precise procedure of suturing and surgical port.

The term of follow-up in this case was too short. The author should add comments about them.
