Reviewer's report:

dear authors,

although the topic is of interest but the article needs major revisions as the objective of the study does not match the results and conclusion. moreover the tables need a major revision. you also need to get an english language expert as there are certain grammatical mistakes for i.e. "their" instead of "there". In the beginning, the researchers talk about questionaire and then later it becomes interviews. moreover the researchers donot specify that how were they able to draw a comparison between results of women and men respondants ,owing to fact that female respondants formed 82% of the sample. The tables donot give a clear picture of results, what do the researchers try to depict in brackets?
