Reviewer's report:

Dear Authors:

Thanks you for the interesting case presented. I have two major questions and think they need to be answered before we proceed:

1- Delayed psychological and neurological sequelae is a well known phenomenon well described since 1986. What is the novelty of this case?

2- As I understood, you have not even diagnosed CO poisoning till some days later when other patients came. How can you say the patient was completely OK on discharge when you have no Brain CT, MRI, EEG or MME from him when discharged?
