Reviewer's report:

Thank you for selecting such a hot topic to answer an important question. I am wondering about the sentence you mentioned in page 10 "The baseline participant demographic characteristics were similar in both groups as shown in Table 1". According to that table Ethnicity was statistically different in two groups. It was needed to be controlled in further analyses.

In my idea your intervention had changed beta cells function in intervention group and it was a significant change. Why do not you consider it as an effect of supplementation?
