Title: Food choice patterns of long-haul truck drivers driving through Germany, a cross sectional study.

Version: 0 Date: 05 Oct 2019

Reviewer: Zakari Ali

Reviewer's report:

This study explores with a cross-sectional design the food patterns of long-haul truck drivers driving through Germany. The target population may be a minority group whose work demands potentially influence their food choice, therefore, this study idea is interesting. I have some comments for the authors to consider.

Methods

- Describe the assessment of weight/height and calculation of BMI and which classification categories were used.

- Provide some more detail on which statistical tests were used for which variables. The current form is too general.

- It is not appropriate to begin the data analysis section with brackets (Revise). See line 120.

Results

- Table 3. Write out the actual p-values to 2 decimal places in the table instead of the asterisks used (Revise).

Abstract

- Line 43. Are you missing the word 'be' ? (...appeared to ??? associated…).

Are the methods appropriate and well described?
If not, please specify what is required in your comments to the authors.

Yes

Does the work include the necessary controls?
If not, please specify which controls are required in your comments to the authors.
Yes

Are the conclusions drawn adequately supported by the data shown?
If not, please explain in your comments to the authors.

Yes

Are you able to assess any statistics in the manuscript or would you recommend an additional statistical review?
If an additional statistical review is recommended, please specify what aspects require further assessment in your comments to the editors.

I am able to assess the statistics
