The manuscript is well written and the objectives and the conclusions are clear and appealing. It certainly deserves publication; however, before accepting it for publication, there are few issues which should be replied:
1. The title should not include the phrase longitudinal, merely following it up after a period of 8 months doesn't make the study longitudinal.
2. Please write the full form of BME- Black minority ethnicity/ethnic.
3. The references showing website or web references should have date when you saw that website.
4. Please discuss in discussion section that how this method of assessing the nutritional status is at par with the anthropometric and other acceptable methods of assessment.

There is no technical flaw in the study and after addressing these minor points, it deserves publication.

Are the methods appropriate and well described?
