Title: Evaluating the acceptability of a co-produced and co-delivered mental health public engagement festival: Mental Health Matters, Jakarta, Indonesia

Version: 0 Date: 07 May 2019

Reviewer: Michael Osborne

Reviewer's report:

I found this of general interest especially as the event was in Indonesia. I learned some new facts and was surprised at the restraint of some mental health sufferers. I think that this event was successful and very much essential for the progress, enlightenment and well being of the people Indonesia. The benefit encouragement and learning of the medical staff and interested parties was brilliant. Encouraging and influencing mental health awareness and consideration in the country was excellent. Also generating an interest in research. I liked the priorities that were discussed and listed. A well planned, organised, well documented, successful and worthwhile event. I am afraid that I couldn't give a higher rating because it was only really valuable to those persons involved in Indonesia. I felt that the usual reader would find the article pleasing but of little value for knowledge.
