Title: Parenting Science Gang: radical co-creation of research projects led by parents of young children

Version: 0 Date: 08 Nov 2019

Reviewer: Jenny Preston

Reviewer's report:

This is an amazing project that truly involved and engaged parents through the research process as public contributors. The use of Facebook to engage parents was fantastic and is an excellent way to overcome the challenges associated with patient and public involvement, i.e. reliance of face to face meetings that only a few patients/parents can join because of family and work commitments. Really interesting paper with excellent outputs and impact on those who got involved.
