Reviewer’s report

Title: Two cases of perforated corneal ulcers complicating rheumatoid arthritis treated successfully by biological therapy

Version: 2  Date: 12 Nov 2019

Reviewer: Irene Cecchi

Reviewer's report:

Despite the changes and the improvements that have been made by the Authors of this interesting manuscript in order to balance the discussion section (as previously suggested), this Reviewer feel that the article, again, is not suitable for publication unless an extensively English revision, preferentially made by a native speaker.

Some example are listed below:
- Please rephrase this sentence: "That ocular involvement can remain undetected for many years or even misdiagnosed by physicians, that is why the rheumatologists should perform an ocular examination for all RA patients in the diagnosis and during the follow-up"
- "PUK and necrotizing scleritis are the two most severe ocular diseases associated with the RA" please change "diseases" with "manifestations".
- "The Methotrexate was stopped for therapeutic inefficiency after one year" please change "inefficiency" with "inefficacy".
- "...with a history of chronic smoking", please modify as follow "with a positive history of smoking habit"
